

Live in the Historic Woolworth Building for $26.4 Million

*Full-floor Homes are now Available in this New York City
Landmark*

By Melissa Milton
Impressions 1,502,588

© 2014 Travis Mark ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

You may know the Woolworth Building as one of the most historic places in the United States, formerly housing a shopping mall, but now it's getting a different title: luxury apartment building.

March 14, 2017
ArchitecturalDigest.com

Completed in 1913, it stood as the tallest building in the world until 1930, when the Chrysler Building was erected. The top thirty floors have been converted to residences, though the 33 units are still under construction, which will include full-floor homes on the market for $26.4 million. Designed by French architect and designer Thierry Despont, all of the apartments feature custom kitchens with Dada cabinetry, Calacatta Caldia marble countertops and backsplashes, solid oak herringbone floors, and a suite of integrated Miele appliances. The building's amenities include a pool, spa, and sauna; a wine cellar and tasting room; and an exclusive entertainment salon. With one-bedroom units starting at $4.6 million, it may be worth it to live in the "cathedral in the sky."

Below is a model apartment, decorated by Alan Tanksley, which represents 2-3 bedroom units that will be priced around $9.5 million.

March 14, 2017
ArchitecturalDigest.com

<http://www.architecturaldigest.com/story/woolworth-building-luxury-apartment>